When Activision announced Call of Duty: Warzone Mobi le in 2024, the developer said it was planning to release the game 128176; so metime this year, shortly after Call of Duty: Modern Warfare II became available . Now, Activision has published a trailer for 128176; the mobile title, with the revelation that it's coming out sometime in the spring of 2024 instead.
It has no 128176; specific launch date yet, but those interested can already pre-order from Google Play or the App Store. Warzone Mobile is a 128176; battle royale experience, which will put up to 120 players on a single map. The matches' operators, weapons, locatio ns and 128176; combat are supposed to be familiar to current Warzone fans. It will also share a Battle Pass, as well as 128176; feature cross-progression, with Modern Warfare II and Warzone 2.0. While the game won't be widely avai lable until 2024, fans in 128176; Australia, Chile, Norway and Sweden have be en able to play it since earlier this year. This 'limited release' ver sion gives 128176; Activision a way to test the game with a wider audience th an it can with its Closed Alpha, so it 128176; can find and fix more bugs, st ress test matches and collect as much feedback as possible on gameplay and diffe rent 128176; elements of the title. In addition to announcing a new release date window for Warzone Mobile, Activision has also revealed that 128176; the game will come with access to Rebirth Island from day one. The fan favorite Resurgence mode map will be 1281 76; making its debut on mobile and has apparently been 'painstakingly and specially built' for this game. As for those waiting for 128176; Modern Warfare III, Raven Software has confirmed at the COD Next event that players will be able to slide cancel & 128176; in the game a mechanic that was notably absent from Modern Warfare II . Take note, though, that while the 128176; mechanic is coming back, it will no longer reset Tactical Sprint.
