Go is a strategic board game for two players. It is known as Weiqi in Chinese, Igo in Japan and Go in the West; Baduk in Korea; and Othello in the United States. It is one of the most popular board games in the world. Go is played on a board with 19 vertical lines and 19 horizontal lines, forming 361 intersections. The game is played with black and white stones. The player with black stones starts the game by placing a stone on any empty intersection. The player with white stones then places a stone on any empty intersection adjacent to a black stone. This process continues until no more stones can be placed. The game ends when one player has no more stones to place and the other player has no stones that can be captured. The player with the most stones on the board at the end of the game wins.
